Festival on Village Green.

In the afternoon the boys and girls had In the afternoon the boys and girls had a festival on the village green in Hudson Park and there were codles of ice cream and lemonade and cake. On the east side of the park were the star exhibits of the fair, a baby pig very small and pink and greedy; five goats, three grownups and two infants, and some very sedate hens. To-day, however, there will be a cow in the show, and the coming of the cow will be the big event of the celebration.

be the big event of the colebration.

The villagers had a hard time getting a cow. They appealed to gentlemen farmers of Long Island, Westchester and New Jersey, but nobody wanted to risk ruining the disposition of his cow by sending it to Greenwich Village. But Secretary William Spinney of the village fair committee finally found a cow over in New Jersey, or found an owner who was willing to lead a cow rather. It is a venerable cow named Nellie, a cow with a phlegmatic, settled disposition, one whose nerves are that disposition, one whose nerves are the disposition, one whose nerves are the stated disposition, one whose nerves are that the President's attitude toward the Young China party and his action in dissolving the Parliament have been misunderstood, and explains or found an owner who was willing to lend a cow rather. ### WILLS AND APPRAISALS.

GEORGE V. N. BALDWIN.-Surrogate Fowler signed an order yesterday for a compulsory accounting by Charles May and George V. N. Baldwin, Jr., of the law firm of Baldwin & May, as executors under the will of George V. N. Baldwin, who died in 1908. The accounting was asked for by Edith McKenney Burnham, who said that the transfer tax appraisal of Mr. Baldwin's estate showed that he left $176,242 in New York State and $32,000 more in New Jersey. His will was contested and under a compromise the petitioner was entitled to $36,600 from the New York estate and a proportionate amount of the New Jersey property. She has received only $13,000 and has been unable to get an accounting from the executors.

THOMAS KELLY, head of the furniture firm of Thomas Kelly & Co., who died at 19 West Seventy-fifth street on May 6. left an estate of more than $300,000 in realty and personal property. His son John T. Kelly gets the life income on $40,000, and on his death it goes to the 340,000, and on his death it goes to the testator's seven daughters. - A son, Rich-dard F.
